ZRG’s Global Equipment Leasing and Asset Finance Hiring Index posted a slight decrease in overall hiring demand, ending the quarter at 54.5, down 3.4% in the quarter.

While hiring demand was down in 6 of the 10 regions tracked in the Index, there was some positive news for employees in the sector. Leading this in Q1 was China, which bounced back after a slower Q4 to claim the biggest growth market for new job opportunities on a percentage basis. Recent reports on increased infrastructure spending could continue to create lending opportunities in the region and result in continued hiring growth in China throughout 2013.

However, the other parts of the BRIC regions all posted less demand with India, Russia and Brazil all indicating less hiring needs during the quarter. While the current numbers point to less demand, ZRG is seeing increased boardroom discussions around the India topic as many multi-nationals see this market as having room for new entrants, favorable lending conditions and long-term growth while some core geographic markets seem flat.

In Europe, Germany and France both showed another quarter of slower hiring requirements, making it now four straight periods of decline. However, the UK reversed the trend and led the region with new opportunities turning to the positive side.

The USA showed a retreat in the quarter on a percentage basis but still has strong overall demand from the bank leasing sector and from the independents that are seeking growth in 2013. However, Caterpillar’s Q1 earnings announcement indicates slower sales abroad could be a warning of less opportunity as captives seem to be holding on headcount.

Chile and Brazil both had less hiring activity reported in the quarter but Mexico stayed consistent with Q4 levels.
USA Equipment Leasing
Hiring Index retreats 8.8% in Q1 2013

In the US, Q1 brought a bit of retreat in the hiring demand for the equipment leasing sector, ending the quarter off 8.8% from year end ranges. While declining slightly in Q1, the overall level of open positions across the sector still remains healthy with somewhat broad hiring occurring with captives, banks and independents.

While overall index numbers were slightly down, there is still strong demand for growth with many organizations, leading to more search engagements for business unit leaders, sales leaders and sector expansions. However, demand exceeds supply for transferable volume.

From the larger index companies, CIT slowed down in the overall pace for new hiring, while GE maintains fairly strong this quarter and De Lage Landen retreated. The Captive Finance sector showed less hiring on a relative basis in the index, perhaps mirroring the GDP growth and sales growth of their parent organizations.

Offsetting the larger index companies, the broader hiring in the sector, measured by several key classified postings, did show an increase in demand. This shift could be signaling less senior level hiring in Q1 with more line and staff roles in the sector. Again, sales roles and risk positions lead the way for skill sets in demand. However, many of the sales posting’s seem to point to needle in the haystack “book of business” hires that often remain unfilled for months.

The net-net for Q1: A slight reduction in new roles but still lots of overall opportunity when compared to the past few years in the USA.
